Facilities Management – Centrally Funded and Recharge Services

The Facilities Management Service Guide provides our customers with a list of services provided, differentiating between those services that are centrally funded and those services that are chargeable to the department. All services are available at a charge to auxiliary units and units in non-centrally funded spaces.

Facilities Management operates and maintains UCSB facilities as set forth in the University of California Office of the President FACILITES MANUAL VOLUME 6. We strive to support the campus mission, however, our priorities undergo constant re-evaluation in light of budget and other external factors.

Building Systems Maintenance, Repair and Replacement

The FACILITIES MANUAL referenced above makes clear distinctions between maintenance, repair and replacement that have implications as to how the work is undertaken, as well as impacts on funding and approval processes. In the event the cost of the maintenance or repair of the building system becomes unreasonable as compared to replacement, or the building system has reached the end of its useful life, Facilities Management will work in partnership on a resolution/replacement with the affected department.

Facilities Management generally will maintain building systems (roof, HVAC, floor coverings, built-in casework, etc.) that are original to the building to ensure they retain functionality for its anticipated useful life. Facilities Management will work with campus units to determine who should maintain specialized research equipment. Facilities Management does not pay for the replacement of specialized research equipment. In addition, the maintenance for any building space that has been re-purposed or modified by the department is recharged.
